

MERE RABBLES SEEK SAFETY

Kuropatkin's Army Is Suffering An Awful Defeat at Oyama's Hands Today.

KUROKI BREAKS RUSSIAN LINES

Manchurian Army Officers Have Asked Their General To Surrender To Save The Lives of Thousands.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Tokio, March 11.—The Japanese under Kuroki have broken through the Russian line on the Hun river east of Mukden. A large part of the Russian army is entrapped between the forces of Generals Kuroki and Nogai, and the Russians are fleeing in disordered masses with the Japanese shelling the flying mobs. The losses are enormous and a great number of prisoners have been taken. The heavy fighting continues to the east and northeast of Mukden. General Oku has captured Su Ja Ton, the Russians' main supply depot, with enormous quantities of supplies and millions of rifle cartridges.

Want to Surrender.
It is reported that nine hundred officers of the Manchurian army have signed a round robin addressed to General Kuropatkin demanding a conclusion of the hostilities owing to the menace of a famine. General Nadaroff has been nominated by the war office as commander of the rear guard of the Manchurian army.

Sends Congratulations.
Minister of War Terauchi has telegraphed congratulations to Field Marshal Oyama and his officers and men on their victory. Oyama in reply ascribes his success to the emperor and the gallantry of the officers and men.

Oyama's Report.
General Oyama reports: "In the direction of Shinkung we were attacking a superior force of the enemy holding the heights north of Fushan. In the direction of Shaho we expelled the enemy to the right bank of the Hun river, and are now enveloping and attacking to the east and north of Mukden since noon of the 10th. A large number of the enemy are completely worn out and retreating in disorder northward through the district between Mukden and the railway. Swarms of the enemy are in the district from Mukden to Sanju, seven miles north where the infantry and artillery have been concentrated to fire on the enemy all night. Another detachment is inflicting considerable damage on the retreating enemy at Puh, thirteen miles north of Mukden."

Fighting Hard.
Gen. Oyama reports the Hing Ting detachment of Japanese troops last night reached a point five miles north of Fushan, and are now vigorously engaging the enemy.

Many Prisoners.
While the extent of the catastrophe to the Russian army is not fully known here, it is expected that the number of prisoners will reach 50,000.

Peace Negotiations.
Washington, March 11.—According to Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, the Russian reverses will have no effect in hastening the peace measures. He said this morning: "After Lio Yang there was talk of peace. Russia's answer was reinforcements. Like Lio Yang, Mukden is the scene of another retreat and again the Russians' answer will be large reinforcements, but of peace, not a word."

Peace Talk.
St. Petersburg, March 11.—The rumor is current that the czar is considering summoning a special council to consider the conditions of peace.

Kuropatkin's Report.
St. Petersburg, March 11.—General Kuropatkin has reported to the emperor: "Our retreat is being conducted with the enemy harassing both flanks. The second army under Bidelgung has suffered the heaviest in killed and wounded and also in prisoners. How many has surrendered is unknown."

Heavy Loss.
St. Petersburg, March 11.—Kuropatkin has lost three hundred guns and sixty thousand men were taken prisoners according to reports to the military club today.

Japs Reach Hills.
Several corps south and east of Mukden are completely surrounded by the Japanese, whose center, by a bold dash, pushed straight to the hills midway between Mukden and Fushan. The Russians everywhere are burning their stores. Their losses, including prisoners, probably exceed 200,000.

It is even rumored that Kuropatkin has been captured, although this is thought unlikely.

The Russian disaster was partly due to the inefficiency of the intelligence department, which was not aware of the Japanese march to Simlaing until it was too late to make a counter move.

Nearly all the Russians' heavy guns and many field guns have been captured.

Gen. Oyama Reports.
Field Marshal Oyama's report of his victory, under Friday's date, is as follows:

"We occupied Mukden at 10 o'clock this morning."

"Our surrounding movement in which we have been engaged for some days past has now completely succeeded."

"The fiercest fighting continues at several places in the vicinity of Mukden."

"We captured a great number of prisoners, enormous quantities of arms, ammunition, provisions and other war supplies. There is at present no time to investigate the number of these."

BOY PLANS SHORT ROAD TO REACH EASY STREET

Offers Gold Fountain Pen and Chance at Baby Grand Piano in Return for $1 Subscription Fee.

Washington, March 11.—A fraud order has been issued against the Robbins Publishing company and the Glide Monthly at Plano, Ill. The promoter of both these concerns was I. B. Roe, a young boy. He sent circulars to persons whose names were secured from letter brokers saying that they had been voted the most popular lady or gentleman, as the case may be, in their particular locality; that they would therefore be entitled to a gold fountain pen as a prize and to draw for a $500 baby grand piano. These privileges, however, were made conditional upon the receipt of $1 for a year's subscription to the Glide Monthly.

The department got on young Roe's tracks before he had received a single answer to his circulars and ordered his mail held up.

Upon investigation, he admitted to postoffice inspectors that he alone constituted the concerns in question; that there had been no contest, that no prizes were to be distributed and that the alleged monthly did not exist.

In his opinion upon the case Assistant Attorney General Goodwin, who is an Illinoisan himself, recommended that Roe be not prosecuted on account of his youth, but that mail addressed to the fraudulent concerns operated by him be not transmitted by the postoffice department, in which recommendation Postmaster General Cortelyou concurred.

Edward Dickinson of Green Bay has been convicted of criminal assault on Olive Mieux, aged 12.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Cleveland, O., March 11.—Attorney Dawley began the opening argument for the defense in the Chadwick trial this morning. Mrs. Chadwick, with her son at her side, sat unmoved by the emotional appeal of her lawyers.

Mr. Dawley closed his arguments at 11:25 and District Attorney Sullivan then addressed the jury for the state. During Dawley's peevishness Mrs. Chadwick wept violently. Attorney Dawley contended the evidence showed that Mrs. Chadwick had deposited a hundred and four thousand dollars in the Oberlin bank and had drawn out only ninety-four thousand.

"Black Avengers" of Columbia Administer Bitter Dose to Young Millionaire.

New York, March 11.—Kingdon Gould has been hazed.

Since his return to the Columbia campus after his trouble before the Christmas recess young Gould has been regarded by students as a protégé of the faculty. There exists a sophomore class organization known as the "Black Avengers," constituted for settling just such problems as young Gould's case presented.

Not many nights ago when it became known that Dr. Butler was about to leave for Montana, Gould was accosted by a young man as he was going from the university grounds to his fraternity house. The young man asked him some questions about the next day's lectures and the two walked on, two other students joining them.

The newcomers did not bother to ask questions. One told Gould he was "pinched." Gould was informed he had his choice of accompanying them then or of giving his parole to meet them at a stated place and hour that night. He accepted the latter and kept his agreement.

A lecture on the proper conduct for freshmen was administered to Gould. Then he was asked to spell "money," after which he was forced to relate the genealogy of the Gould family and expound the police regulations as to the carrying of concealed weapons.

After these preliminaries, it is said, Gould was blindfolded and set astride a barrel with a broom in his hand and told to give an exhibition pony polo ride. A sudden kick sent the barrel from under his rider, and he was declared unhorsed.

With two toothpicks in his hand and a shingle to sit on Gould was compelled to play varsity oarsman. There were a few other things, all of which he did.

The campus report has it that the young man took his medicine well.

TRADE OUTLOOK GROWS TO LOOK BETTER WEEKLY

Weather Conditions And Transportation Facilities All Tend To Contribute Favorably.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

Chicago, March 11.—The weekly review of Chicago trade, published by R. G. Dun & Co., says:

"Business conditions were less handicapped, weather and transportation having improved, and the opportunity to advance operations is encouragingly reflected in the week's results. These indicate increased deliveries of commodities, better demand for necessities and future factory output, and an enlarging use of bank accommodation. Money remained in ample supply, but the revived commercial borrowing imparted more firmness to the discount rate."

"The marketing of farm products was unusually heavy and values suffered a slight impairment. Reports from the agricultural sections show wheat and rye to have come through the severe winter without damage and spring work on the farms making progress."

Movement of Food Stuffs.

"Shipments of food stuffs made the largest aggregate in ten weeks, but late buying included little flour, corn and provisions making the best showing. The markets for general merchandise were well attended by outside buyers and transactions exhibit larger volume than for the previous week. The buying has emphasized confidence in the approaching spring trade and many purchases were made on a discount basis. Requests again were numerous for prompt forwarding to the interior of dry goods, footwear, clothing and groceries. Less complaint developed as to mercantile settlements in the South and local collections were satisfactory."

Factories Are Busy.

"Manufacturing branches have added to the volume of production and in most of the leading lines new business made further gain. Rails were more freely ordered and other railroad requirements increased, notably in cars and locomotives. Furnace output has been augmented in response to heavier demand and the tonnage booked exceeded last week's. Specifications for structural steel were more promptly supplied, and deliveries will be larger. Heavy shipments appeared in wire product, general hardware and electric equipment, while orders for machinery, plumbing supplies and brass goods were the best this year."

Grain and Live Stock.

"Grain dealings exhibit the greatest volume thus far this year. Total receipts reached 6,162,215 bushels, against 4,513,668 bushels last week and 4,873,022 bushels a year ago. The shipments were 2,299,899 bushels, an increase of 33.2 per cent over the same week in last year. Receipts of live stock were 324,430 head, against 253,251 head in same week of 1904. The markets were kept quite active and the price changes over a week ago were slight. Corn and hogs advanced, but wheat, hog products, cattle and sheep declined."

"Failures reported in the Chicago district number twenty, against twenty-one last week and thirty-five a year ago."

OLD FOGY ASKS FOR MORE LIGHT

SUGGESTS GAS LAMPS BE USED ON THE SIDE STREETS

SOME OBJECTION TO PLANS

Tells Citizens To Be Patient When Looking for Changes in Police Department.

To the Editor: It is hard work to have to grind away on the same subjects week after week. To tackle the police, the government morgue, the houses in the streets and so forth. To-day I have hit upon a new subject for the principal item of my letter. The lighting of the city. Janesville should be better lighted. There are a lot of dark corners, which should be thrown into the light. Why not center the electric lights in the downtown district and in the outlying streets have gas lamps? This is a subject that will bear investigation and such an investigation should bear fruit. This summer the question of renewing the lighting contract comes up for discussion. The sooner this project is aired and understood the better results we shall have. There are not enough lights in the city of Janesville to properly light the city. I do not mean to cast reflections upon the electric light company as the lights now in existence give good light but there are not enough of them.

Use Gas. As I said before, why not concentrate the electric lights down town and use gas lights through the wards? I do not mean to take the lights away from some of the corners they are now on but to increase this service with gas lamps. It would be less expensive to the city than increasing the electric lights and the cutting down of the taxes is a problem we are all anxious to see accomplished. We have had little or no street improvement in the way of new macadam during the past two years. But our treasury is not now depleted and had we been extravagant we could not now go ahead with a clear conscience that we were not spending our money before we actually had it. This use of gas would give us better light and save us money. Why not adapt it? At least why not think of it?

Have Patience. The old saying "Rome was not built in a day" is true. Neither will the Janesville police force be reorganized in a day. No, nor a month. It was to be hoped that with a new chief and new regulations regarding the number of officers that we might have a better service but apparently we are laboring under a misapprehension. There are just as many places where a young boy can get a drink if he wants it as ever. There are just as many young boys, under twenty-one, who frequent such places as ever. Gambling has been going on all winter just the same and still the police carry their pieces of cord wood and wear their "grand army uniforms." But have patience, Rome was not built in a day. The council has decreed that the city shall have more police. The city has decreed that the police shall be uniformed. The city has decreed that the department shall be reorganized. Have patience. It will come. Perhaps when the spring flowers blossom out the police will also bloom with rejuvenated service and new uniforms and better regulations than in the past. But there are spring showers and election is coming on and fences, political, have to be built, so do not expect too much at once. Have patience. Perhaps the patience may be rewarded, perhaps it will not. Time alone can tell. The citizens elected the council, the council elected the chief, and made the regulations, so the council is to be blamed if anyone. The mayor is supreme and could see ordinances enforced if he wished.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier. In nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gasses and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system. Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually cleans and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic. It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest, powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from the continued use of them, but one the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

but as I said: Politics! Politics! Politics!!

Same Old Kick. Cannot the business men, the taxpayers, the substantial citizens make some appeal to the postoffice department at Washington for better mail service and better equipment in the postoffice. Is there no way of seeking redress? Is there no person who can, or has authority, to compel the Janesville postoffice authorities to at least keep their postoffice lighted evenings so people can read an address on an envelope at least. There should be some way out of the difficulty, but apparently there is none. The abuses go on. The laxity of the department continues. The postoffice is still darkened as though for a funeral and the costly pile, known as government property, is one of the most dismal portions of the city after nightfall. Why, to tell the truth, even with the all-night service a person wanting to mail a letter after the front doors close must go to a hotel to be sure it will go off on the night trains. Such service should not be allowed. The postoffice department at Washington should not permit it and if they knew of it probably would not.

BADGER STATE TO GO TO ROCHELLE

Rockford Paper Announces That Site Has Been Donated and Much of Bonus Subscribed.

To those who for various reasons failed to take action when the question of a site for the Badger State Machine company, in order that the growing business of the manufacturing concern could be housed in a factory building sufficiently large to do all the work in this city and make more room for that which is now being done here, was brought up, the following from the Rockford Republic may be of interest:

"Last Saturday evening officials of the Badger State Machine company met a number of Rochelle's representative citizens in the opera-house, and Mr. Fisher, a representative of the company, stated that if the citizens of Rochelle donated an acre of ground located on the Southworth tract across the road west from the canning factory and $8,000 in cash the factory would move to Rochelle. Mr. Fisher stated that the company would build a structure to cost $15,000 and would guarantee to employ no less than twenty-five men for at least five years. An opportunity was given those present to donate and $2,800 was raised. Mrs. Thomas Southworth donated the acre of land. Following are others who contributed:

"D. W. Baxter, $500; Geo. W. Stocking, $500; Rochelle National bank, $500; P. Hohenadel, $400; G. W. Hamlin, $250; M. D. Hathaway, $250; C. E. Gardner, $200; Evans & Barber, $200.

MORE THAN SIXTY YEARS IN STATE

M. M. Tullar, Who Now Resides in Evansville, Among the First To Come There.

M. M. Tullar, an aged resident of Rock county, who now lives in Evansville, was among the pioneers in the early days settled in the north-eastern corner of the county. He, like many of the other emigrants who came to Wisconsin when the state was young, is a native of New York state, having been born in Cayuga county, May 28, 1810. Only a few of his earliest years were passed at that place, moving with his parents at the age of three years to Crawford county, in the state of Pennsylvania. Mr. Tullar was united in marriage with Miss Lasebe Gallop of Pennsylvania, January 13, 1842. Thirteen children were born to them and of these ten are now living. At the age of twenty-eight he with his family left the state of William Penn.

M. M. TULLAR, OF EVANSVILLE, AND HIS LATE WIFE

trekking westward. He came to Evansville and stayed there but one winter. In the following spring he moved to a farm in Green county, where living for the next nine years. It was after this residence of less than a decade outside of the county that he returned, settling on a farm in the town of Union, where he lived until the death of his wife two years ago. Since her demise he has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. A. L. Taggart in Evansville.

BINDER STOCK IS IN GREAT DEMAND

Eastern Tobacco Men Buying in Wisconsin—Local Leaf Market Becoming Busy.

Though the leaf market in southern Wisconsin has again become normally active there comes a demand from the east for Wisconsin binder stock. This is the result of the scarcity of this class this past year and the hull in the Badger state movements a short time ago during the cold weather when tobacco business for a time was nearly suspended. The American Cigar company and eastern men are out for all that is obtainable at a reasonable price and the majority of the sales have been made to the former named concern. The country roads are still in a bad condition, but the improvement has allowed the local handlers to ride in the field again and purchases of crops from the farmers are being made continually now. Each day sees many pounds of leaf come into the city by wagon and delivered at the warehouses and though the new crop has proven to be a good one and the prices are by no means exceptionally high, many movements are made. Following are some of the purchases made about here and the prices paid for 1904 leaf: Julius Teubert, 4a at 7.3¢; John Smith, 2 1/2a at 4.8¢; Thomas Hyme, 4a at 7.4¢; A. Bushfield, 2a at 7.1¢; John Bushfield, 4a at 7.4¢; A. C. Carl, 2a at 6.4¢; John Stock, 2a at 3¢; F. T. Atkinson, 2a at 9¢; Patrick Flood, 4a at 7.1¢; Aug. Shutt, 4a at 6.4¢; J. Hanson, 4a at 6.4¢.

The shipments and purchases in other leaf made here for the week past were: Fisher & Fisher bought and sold a 235c lot of 1901; M. F. Green ships two cars composed of 1902-3; S. Soverhill disposed of 1200c of old goods to G. & J. W. Barker of Pittsburg; S. B. Heddles shipped a car of export; J. M. Thayer purchased 100 boxes of 1901 and shipped 61c of 1901; McGiffin & Piffel shipped a car of 1901; A. N. Jones shipped one car of 1901; F. S. Baines secured an 820c packing, 1901 crop of northern tobacco, which is now being sampled at this place, also buys 35c at Colfax and sold 470c of 1901-2.

Mr. J. W. Barker of G. & J. W. Barker of Pittsburg, Pa., was in this city the latter part of last week looking for filler grades, and made purchases to the extent of 5000c.

STOUGHTON MAN TALKS ON ROAD

Alderman From the Norwegian City Has His Own Ideas Regarding Interurbans.

Thomas Oseur, who is the only candidate for alderman from the fourth ward of Stoughton, believes that the proper method to pursue by the council in every city along the route of the contemplated interurban railroad between Madison and Janesville, is to exact a good and sufficient bond, carrying with it a heavy forfeit if the road is not begun or completed within a certain period after granting of the franchise, according to an article under a Stoughton date-line in the Madison Journal. He says he is opposed to the goodfavored course heretofore observed by Stoughton aldermen in dealing with the subject, adopting the ordinance drawn and submitted by attorneys for the interurban company, without any change or amendment in behalf of the municipality, as was the case last year. Up to the time of final action by the council the Janesville Traction company and in the direction of Al Edgerton, but after that time Civil Engineer Jackson was called off and there has not been a pretense of beginning operations on the line up to date. Recently an extension was granted the company by the Janesville common council but Mr. Oseur declares that when the company requests the same favor from Stoughton it should be prepared to submit something more substantial than promises as an indication of good faith. Owing to the fast and loose methods of the interurban companies the project has become more or less of a joke among the people living in the section to be traversed. We are now dealing with the third interurban combination, covering a period of four years. If the railroad companies are manipulating the promoters, let the railroads pay for the privilege.

NOW QUESTIONS A RIGHT TO ACT

Attorney General Makes Strange Decision Regarding Capitol Commission.

Attorney General Sturdevant has added new fuel to the flames in the capital fight at Madison by rendering an opinion to the effect that the capitol commission, on which were two of the justices of the supreme court, did not have power to issue warrants. Mr. Sturdevant is said to have this opinion completed, but for the present it is locked up in his desk on a request to hold until after arguments have been heard on the subject. This phase of the fight was precipitated by State Treasurer Kempf's refusing to honor the warrants issued to the competing architects for capitol plans. Mr. Kempf asked the attorney general for an opinion and there the matter stands. At present it looks as though the architects would have to go without any remuneration for their work in preparing the plans.

VERDICT SEEMS NOT TO FAVOR PLAINTIFF

Jury's Answers to Questions in Kueck vs. Rock River Machine Co. Action Favor Defendant.

Late yesterday afternoon, after being out seven hours, the jury trying the personal injury action brought in behalf of Fred Kueck by his guardian against the Rock River Machine Co., returned answers to the eleven questions propounded by the court which are regarded as favoring the defendant company. The boy is a son of ex-Alderman Kueck and the action was started to recover $5,000 damages for the loss of four fingers of the right hand in an accident which occurred on Dec. 24, 1903, while the boy was operating a planer at the North Main street factory. The jury in its answers stipulated that the damages, if any, should be $3,000. But they also found that while the boy had not been sufficiently warned regarding the operation of the planer, he had been guilty of negligence. The amount of damages, if any, is a question that will be determined by the court. John L. Fisher and C. E. Pierce appeared for the plaintiff and George B. Sutherland for the defense.

The North-Western Line

One of the most interesting stories of articles on the subject of the great railroads of the country that has appeared recently is that from the pen of Frank H. Spearman, recently published in the Saturday Evening Post, and since printed in book form by Scribners. The chapter descriptive of the Chicago & North-Western Ry. has been published by the passenger department of that line in pamphlet form for general distribution, and will be sent to any address on receipt of 2 cents for postage. Fair tonight and Sunday with rising temperature.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"Never do today what you can put off until tomorrow," is a maxim which is religiously observed in the south, and this principle of extreme moderation is one of the distinguishing features of this happy-go-lucky country.

It would be considered an outrage to the established custom to have wood enough prepared at night to last the next day, for the theory is that it may be warm tomorrow and fuel will not be needed.

An old colored brother had a cabin which was badly out of repair. A gentleman and lady called one day to seek refuge from a summer shower. The roof leaked like a sieve and the man said:

"Uncle Rastus, you ought to fix your roof to keep out the rain," to which the old man replied:

"How can I fix it when it rains so hard?"

"Well, you might fix it when it don't rain," said his visitor.

"Dats so," said Uncle Rastus, "but when it am pleasant it done doan leak and dan it doan need no fixin'."

The old man's philosophy is contagious and is as popular with the whites as with the blacks. The climate and perpetual summer doubtless has something to do with these conditions, but they are a revelation to northern people.

Some one has said that contentment is the essence of happiness. The people of the south have it in fluid extract form, and the northern people who live here any length of time take on contentment at rapid pace.

While there is much of shiftlessness and lack of thrift in this sea level country the fact grows upon the visitor that the spirit of contentment, so universal here, could be cultivated in the north to good advantage.

The pace that kills is distinctively a northern pace and this land is full of broken down pacers seeking health, and trying to recuperate and every last one of these wind galled pacers are from the north.

The hotels and resorts are full of them. Men and women, past middle life, who have burned the candle at both ends, until there is but little vitality left. They have passed the age of enjoyment and have joined the long list of semi-invalids, which infest the coast and the south every winter, in a vain effort for happiness.

An old German and his wife, from Milwaukee, went to do people, took the train at Jacksonville for Tampa, the other night. It was their first pleasure trip and they were as forelorn as strangers in a strange land. The old lady said:

"My husband he took seek, and the doctor told him, 'Fritz, you have nervous prostration and you must get away from beensness and dravel. Take your wife and go out and see some dings.' So we came by Jacksonville and stay von day and dey scharge us ten dollars and so we go by Tampa and it dey scharge so much we take a boat and go by Cuba to night, for de doctor say we must dravel and have a good time."

They spent one day in Tampa and then sailed away for Cuba and are doubtless back home before this.

Mr. Morgan, who owns the stock farm near Beloit, came down on the train with the Janesville party. He was traveling with his wife in search of health and pleasure, and stopped off at Tampa to play golf, but he said: "I waited too long. For 35 years I never took a vacation and now with faculties impaired I am trying to have a good time and don't know how. It was all a mistake and if I could live again I would do different."

Mr. Morgan was a pioneer Chicago business man. He was successful and made plenty of money, but when he started out to enjoy it he was in about the same condition as the old German.

There are thousands of such men all through the north. Fired with ambition and money for a goal, they are not satisfied until the wife rests in the graveyard and then they wake up to the fact that the race is about ended with but little in the way of either contentment or happiness to show for it.

Better to live by the way and let the other fellow do the worrying. A farmer came in the other day with a sack of grapefruit. In talking with him about the frost and damage to fruit he said:

"Yes, we had a hard freeze and some of the young trees were killed, but it's all right. If we didn't have a setback now and then fruit would be so plenty that we couldn't give it away."

world will be happier when this spirit of contentment is more prevalent, and people will get more out of life when they learn to live by the way.

PRESS COMMENT.

El Paso Herald: Arkansas wants plug tobacco investigated by the government chemists who are studying up food adulteration.

Racine Journal: The latest is the Panama canal will be at sea level at an expense of $230,500,000. The depth is to be 35 feet.

Evansville Review: The business women of this city are preparing for a banquet and a flow of soul trimmings, at the Central house soon.

Green Bay Advocate: Those who believe that Green Bay has had enough reform are sadly mistaken. The reform process has merely begun.

Exchange: Russia has paid Great Britain $25,000 and the North Sea incident is closed. Let it not be forgotten, however, that Rojstevsky isn't back home yet.

Green Bay Gazette: "Oshkosh Ain't the Rubie Town It Seems," is the name of a song written by a citizen of that place. For the sake of Oshkosh it is to be hoped the title is true.

La Crosse Chronicle: The man who knows and cares nothing about what happens outside his own particular circle is too narrow and self-centered to live in an intelligent community.

Madison Journal: The primary election is to be given a trial this spring at local elections and among people who know each other. It is admitted by some who do not like the larger plan to be thus an attractive method of nomination.

Chicago Record-Herald: Oyama weighs nearly 200 pounds. At last big men may have a hero to pit against the Alexanders, Wellingtons, Napoleons and Grants to whom the little fellows always refer when the question of fighting comes up.

Evening Wisconsin: The question as to spring duck-shooting is again before the legislature. It ought to be settled favorably to those who advocate giving the ducks a rest during the breeding season. Real sportsmen won't shoot birds when they are nesting.

Indianapolis Sentinel: John D. Rockefeller attended a country church last Sunday. He observed that a place in the roof needed patching and left word to have the leak repaired at his expense. A leak is something to which Mr. Rockefeller is constitutionally and by practice opposed.

La Crosse Chronicle: Now let someone build a good hotel at Madison. Charles F. Pister once planned to do it, but there are knoekers at Madison, too, and when they heard of it they began to tell what a wicked, selfish corporationist he was, and of course he called off his architect.

Green Bay Gazette: A doctors' union has been organized in Fond du Lac for the ostensible purpose of establishing uniform charges and then sticking to them. They are all coming to the tent or combination plan, workmen, business men and professional men. It is the spirit of the times.

Eau Claire Leader: The Coe Commission company, the greatest bucket shopping concern in the country, has gone to the wall, and small traders are the chief losers. Not many Eau Claire people were caught, the branch here having been closed out several weeks ago. While the company was at the height of its prosperity it had 175 branches in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Milwaukee News: Your Uncle Ike is disposed to the opinion that Governor La Follette made a mistake in taking the senatorship. Of course, Isaac doesn't care at all because he didn't get it, but he thinks that if La Follette had not been in quite such a hurry to get to Washington nothing could have stopped people from electing him president in 1903. Is Isaac growing ironical or childish?

Oshkosh Northwestern: Buffalo Bill may have honestly believed he was committing no wrong when he kissed his show girls good by and called them "dearies," and perhaps he is even right in his contention that his wife had no cause for kicking up a fuss on this score. But at the same time he must admit it was crowding the limit pretty far when the giddy girls returned the compliment by referring to him as "papa."

Superior Telegram: The Superior Telegram has an idea possibly a zensky zober may be organized in Superior. Possibly if they can keep sober—Racine Journal. There it is again—one of our attempted humorisms lost in the shuffle! We suggested that a zensky zober might be organized. We didn't know whether the supply of raw material was sufficient to organize a zensky zober or not, but there is certainly no shortage of material in these parts to form a zensky zober, or any other kind of a zensky organization. And we are glad of it.

Marquette Eagle-Star: The adoption of the bill to prohibit the sale or manufacture of cigarettes and cigarette paper by the legislature is an important step in the movement to stop the use of them and will doubtless result in a large reduction of the evil results accruing from cigarette smoking. The tobacco manufacturers have fought the bill at Madison but petitions signed by thousands and thousands, convinced the legislature that the restrictive measure was popular with a large portion of the people of the state. It will be interesting to note how after the bill becomes a law, the state will prevent the thousand and one tricks of the trade that will be used to nullify the law, by giving cigarettes as premiums or calling them by some other name.

Chicago Journal: During the winter now happily passing it has been needful to eat a great deal of meat and other strong food in order to supply the heat required for the body in its annual conflict with the forces of frost. Such a diet prolonged into warm weather means nothing less than an overtaxed digestion and a weakening of all human powers of resistance. Nothing can be better for the average man and woman than to go without the quantity of heavy food demanded during cold weather in order to prepare for the spring and summer. Fish, the most easily obtained substitute, naturally suggests itself, with greater quantities of the lighter vegetables. Actual fasting is good for the stomach. This is on the physical side of the question. On the moral side it is to be said that character develops more quickly and sturdily by doing what one does not wish to do, rather than by merely gratifying one's own will. There is a constant tendency toward selfishness as age comes upon mankind, a greater disposition to do as one would, rather than as one should. "Sweet are the uses of adversity," says Shakespeare, and ordinary experience bears out the maxim.

Installments.

Bacon—Did you ever get anything on the installment plan?

Erbert—Yes, I got my household that way. First I got my wife, then her father and mother, and now I'm getting her brothers and sisters.—Yonkers Statesman.

Patient—Look here, doctor: you said if I took a bottle of your tonic I would have a remarkable appetite. Why, I only eat one sofa cracker each week.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Adjutant Bird

Did you ever see an adjutant bird? Well, it is a peculiar looking bird that has been given its name on account of its military appearance.

I shall tell you a story of the adjutant bird. He felt so much like a soldier that he began to think that all the birds should become soldiers and go to the bird store and release the birds that were in captivity. Well, he paid a visit to all of his friends and urged them to join in this scheme, but none of them was in favor of it.

"It is of no use to try any such plan as that," they said to him. "We will all be caught or killed. We cannot do any good by making any such attempt as you propose."

He talked and talked to them, but they would not believe that the idea was a good one.

"Well, then, I know what I will do," he cried boldly. "I will go alone and release all the birds that are kept in cages in the bird store and at private homes."

So he put on his uniform and buckled on his sword and started off, feeling that he was a very mighty fellow indeed.

Now there isn't very much more to my story except this: As soon as the bird store man saw him coming he got out a big net and threw it over the adjutant bird's head. Then he took off the bird's sword and pretty uniform and put him in a cage with his other birds. And not long after that the adjutant bird was sold to a lady, who hung him up in her parlor to show her friends what a fine creature he was.

TAYLOR & LOWELL MFG. CO. Factory, North River St. Janesville, Wisconsin.

CAME TO COUNTY IN APRIL OF 1840

Levi Leonard Planted Nursery in 1845, Where Now a Portion of Evansville Stands.

Leaving his father's home in Broome county, New York, in 1840, with a companion, William Brown, their eyes set on the south, Levi Leonard went west to Chemung county, New York, and engaged to raft lumber down the Chenango and Susquehanna rivers to Port Deposit, the head of navigation on the latter stream. Upon arriving at their temporary destination, work of the winter presented a different aspect to the young men and they decided that the unsettled territory of Wisconsin would contain their future home. By rail, stage coach and canal they went to Cleveland, Ohio, where they took a steamer for Chicago. From that place they continued their journey as far as Rockford, Illinois, by a private conveyance. The distance over prairie lands and wooded hills they LEVI LEONARD OF EVANSVILLE went by foot from the Forest city, then a village, to Evansville, arriving in April of 1840. The first summer in Wisconsin Leonard worked on a farm at $14 a month and the fall of that year purchased forty acres for himself in the town of Union. Twenty of these he broke the following spring and he, together with others, later purchased a farm in Brooklyn, Dane county, which he helped break. But it was not as a tiller of the soil that Mr. Leonard prospered. During the winter months when he was unable to work on the farm he engaged in teaching school, having charge of a number of pupils in Green county in 1840, '41 and '42, at the same time serving as superintendent of schools. He was the first person to teach school in Evansville. In the capacity of master he served for less than six winter terms and probably no other early settler was so closely connected with the education of Rock county's rising generation at that time. In 1844 he went east for a visit to the home of his parents in Broome county, New York, where he was born December 30, 1805. Levi Leonard's father, Amasa Leonard, was the first white child born in Broome county and his grandfather, Captain Joseph Leonard, one of the few survivors of the terrible Wyoming massacre, was the earliest settler of the same district. He received a good English education and in 1839 had taught in the school near his home. Returning to Evansville in 1845 he again pursued the vocations of farming in summer and teaching in winter. Mr. Leonard and Miss Charlotte Taggart were joined in wedlock in Evansville in 1852. Mrs. Leonard died two years later. In 1858 Mr. Leonard was again married, becoming the husband of Mrs. Sarah M. Jones, the mother of one son, who is now Hon. Burr W. Jones of Madison. In 1905 Mr. Leonard retired from farming and since that time has been a resident of Evansville. He has held several positions of trust there and has been largely instrumental in prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor in his home town, where legally none have ever been sold. His health today is good, as it always has been.

Hitherto the men have been allowed only the least bit of power, not being eligible to any office or having the right of the ballot in the society.

SCOTCH POET IS TO BE HONORED

Lewis and Clarke Exposition Will Pay Homage to His Greatness.

The picturesque cottage of "Bobbie Burns" near the old Teon of Arr" is to be reproduced in detail at the Lewis and Clark exposition. A movement has been instituted in Portland among the Scotch residents to bring a replica of the famous cottage to Portland for the centennial, and the financial assistance tendered has been most liberal. Prominent Scotch residents in this country are the prime movers of the enterprise, and they are receiving aid from members of the British Benevolent society, Clan Macleay, the Portland Caledonian club and various other organizations. The cottage contains four compartments, the "but," or kitchen, the "ibon," or second room, the "byre," for domestic animals, and the barn. Among the Burns relics are a griddle, on which the poet's cakes were baked; a chair upon which Burns sat as a child; a dresser, 150 years old; the bed and ancient clock; "Sout or Johnny's" cobbling stool, "Bonnie Jean's" milking stool, and original manuscripts. Next to his immortal poems, the best portions of the cottage where he was born, and where his marvelously prolific brain gave his first efforts to the world. Parts of the original windows and doors of the cottage have been secured on loan from the Scotch owners.

SOCIETY.

Lent has come and the pleasures of the flesh are supposed to have been set aside for the more spiritual devotions and refreshment of the soul. The Catholic and Episcopal churches have begun their observance of this period of fasting and meditation, which ends with the resurrection on Easter day. Janesville society ladies do not strictly observe Lent. Some of the card clubs will postpone their games until after the lenten season; others will continue. There will be no large dancing parties, no gay assemblies whatever. It is perhaps unfortunate that just as Lent is beginning the cooking class, which has been conducted by Mrs. Elizabeth Hiller, closes.

There has perhaps been no more interesting series of lessons on domestic science in Janesville than has just been completed. Mrs. Hiller has won the hearts of all her large class and the intense interest she awakened in domestic science will not end with her leaving the city. Owen Meredith once said an immortal verse—

"We may live without poetry, music and art;
We may live without conscience,
and live without heart,
We may live without friends; we may live without books,
But civilized man cannot live without cooks."

Mrs. Hiller has taught domestic science. She has thrown open the mysteries of the kitchen to the lady of the house. She has explained away the horror and dread of the bread-pan and made the washing of the dishes a pleasure. Her lessons have been full of interest to the young and old housewives and all have profited by them.

Mrs. Hiller should have come to Janesville during Lent. This is the one regret of many of her class. Her charming personality, her apt sayings and her world-wide experience all added to the interest in the lessons. Mrs. Hiller is practical. Her pupils, for they were pupils, have learned through intuition how to prepare the delicacies for the table. Mrs. Hiller leaves Janesville to continue her work in another city. She takes with her the best wishes of not only her class, but of their husbands and families, who will benefit directly by her teachings.

Ability to bolster up or give new life to a lagging conversation with crisp anecdotes, related apropos of nothing or the last subject mentioned when the "talking died," is a rare accomplishment possessed to any dependable degree by but few. A person endowed with such a gift is certain to be the center of attraction in any given company. Afterwards, particularly if she happen to be a young woman and a stranger, her stories are equally certain to be subjected to critical inspection and analysis by nearly all of her fair and envious sisters.

Now a narrative given as a personal experience is worth ten admittedly gleamed from the newspapers and magazines. Yet the quantity of queer and unusual things that may come within the observation of a single person living in a humdrum town is decidedly limited. If one adapts, there is a chance that the real origin of one or two of the yarns in any long series will be recognized by a small percentage of the hearers, who will be polite enough to keep their discoveries to themselves—until afterwards. Having related a number of original and diverting tales of the neighboring town where she resides, the visitor in question launched into the subject of graveyard epitaphs and gave, with plenty of local color intermixed, some startling inscriptions—so curious and mirth-provoking as to cause several of the young men listeners to resolve to visit that quaint burg forthwith and see the queer relics for themselves.

But one of the fairer ones in the group, while smiling with the rest, opened her eyes a trifle wider and made a mental note of one of the "lines to the departed" that had to her a familiar ring. Later on she spent several hours running through the files of a popular women's magazine and back somewhere in the nineties she verified her suspicion. Was the story-teller justified? And if there is any moral to this incident does it not apply to the ungrateful entertained, rather than the resourceful entertainer?

LAST CALL FOR BASE BALL FANS

President Powers Will Be Here Wednesday—Meeting With Inter-urban Officials Arranged.

In a letter to one of the local baseball promoters, received today, President John T. Powers of the Wisconsin League of Professional Baseball Clubs says that he will surely be in Janesville Wednesday morning. He further announces that he has made arrangements for a meeting with the interurban line officials at Beloit at which representatives from Rockford, Janesville, and Beloit will be present. He hints that it will be well to have the right kind of people representing Janesville, as he believes that "it will mean giving you that Yost park lumber for little or nothing." He closes with the injunction: "Get your wire working on the right line." Some speculation is being indulged in regarding the Beloit team, $265 of the $1,000 subscribed for starting the team is not yet subscribed and the $500 forfeit pledged by the Line city management must be paid in by next Wednesday, or the city will lose its franchise.

MYERS ALONE FOR THE UNIVERSITY

Only Half Mile Runner of Wisconsin Entered in A. A. U. Meet—Breitkreutz Disabled.

In the A. A. U. indoor track meet in Milwaukee this evening, Harold Myers of this city will be the only representative of the University of Wisconsin in the half-mile event. Dispatches from Madison state that Captain Breitkreutz, who it was hoped, would administer defeat to Lightbody, the midway half-miler, in the event tonight, injured his ankle to such an extent in the meet last Saturday evening at Madison that he will be unable to be in the races for some time. Kiesel was entered with Breitkreutz and Myers in the 880-yard run but as he will take the mile, Myers alone will negotiate in this event for Wisconsin. Myers will also run a quarter in the mile relay race. To show the fast company in which he is racing the entries for these two are here given:

880-yard championship—John Murphy, U. of Minn.; M. H. Browne, E. C. Hart, B. C. Walter, Strong, B. C. A. Rose, C. A. A.; George Phair, M. C. A. F. Lindberg, C. Y. M. C. A. Chicago; L. H. Powell, C. Y. M. C. A. Chicago; A. C. Thompson, C. Y. M. C. A. Chicago; H. B. Myers, U. of W. One-mile relay championship—University of Wisconsin, L. B. Stevens, B. M. Hasbrouck, Frank Walter, H. B. Myers, W. Thompson, Edward Larson, Margaret college, Milwaukee, George Phair, Leo Hanafin, Harry Devine, Frank Callahan, Joseph Heffron, Frank Jennings.

Probably the most widespread interest in the meet will be centered on the 75-yard dash in which Walter Hahn and Hogsenson will race against each other.

OLD CIRCUS DAYS BROUGHT TO MIND

Janesville Men Long for the Good Old Wagon Show and Saw Dust Ring.

Janesville has furnished the circus world with many of its bright and shining lights. With "Popcorn" George Hall at Evansville and Burr Robbins at Janesville, the county was well represented in the sawdust arena. It would seem that every spring that comes around as though the "carnival fever" struck some enthusiastic and the question of organizing a one ring circus, a circus that traveled from town to town by wagons, with good clowns and good specialties, is discussed. One prominent professional man, who has recently considered such a project. He has even figured down to the fine points of expenses and believes that with a show that costs but three hundred and fifty dollars a day to run, he could take out an aggregation that could make money. He believes that a small fortune could be made by simply going in a radius of ninety to a hundred miles of Janesville, taking in the towns of the railroads and not usually stopped at by the big shows. Just how serious he is taking his own proposition is not known but it has set others to thinking and talking.

RELATIVE TALKS ABOUT LOST MAN

Mr. Wilson of Darlington, Tells of S. W. Martin, Mentioned in Dispatches in Gazette.

Mr. Wilson of Darlington, a relative by marriage of S. W. Martin, concerning whom the following dispatch was printed in the Gazette in the early part of the week, was in the city yesterday:

"S. W. Martin of Atlanta, Kas., supposed to have been murdered, has arrived here. He was robbed and beaten by highwaymen in Chicago. In the fracas one arm was broken and he had to be taken to a hospital. He was sent here as soon as possible." In speaking of the case Mr. Wilson said that Mr. Martin was telegraphed February 21 that his sister, a sister-in-law of the speaker, was seriously ill. Nothing further was heard from him and it was thought that it was impossible for him to come. Sunday last a letter was received in Darlington from Mrs. Martin of Atlanta, Kas., stating that her husband had left February 22, and asking why she had not yet heard from him. A telegram was immediately sent to Atlanta stating that he had not yet arrived and a search was commenced by the police of the country, telegrams concerning his disappearance being sent about. Monday word was received in Darlington concerning the hold-up in Chicago and that the victim was in the Cook County hospital. Monday evening Mr. Martin in a semi-dazed state, by no means well enough to be out of the hospital, with his right arm in a serious condition and a scar on the back of his neck, stepped off the nine o'clock train from Chicago onto the Darlington depot platform. He could remember little of his escapade in Chicago, except that he had been knocked unconscious on Madison street and that he recovered his senses in a hospital ward the day afterward.

Chimney Fire: The fire department was called out shortly after three this afternoon to attend a chimney fire in the residence of Joseph Ziska on Center avenue. The blaze was extinguished with chemicals and no damage was done.

Marriage Licenses: Marriage licenses have been issued recently to Martin Reimer and Ellen Zick of Turtle, and to Herman Damerow and Helen Schroeder of Plymouth.

Doings In Sporting Realms

"Puddin'" McDaniel, the Latest Turf Sensation. "A Wonderful Jockey," Says Sloane -- Larry Waterbury -- Jacob Schaefer and His Billiard Career.

The latest turf sensation is little Jockey R. McDaniel, better known as "Puddin'."

McDaniel is the star rider of the west at present and promises to hold his title for some time.

McDaniel sprang into prominence, it might be said, in a day. Before he

R. ("PUDDIN'") McDANIEL, STAR JOCKEY, went to Ascot park, at Los Angeles, he had had scarcely a mount and did not seem above an apprentice boy in ability. He soon displayed such superior horsemanship, however, and rode with such brilliancy and dash in the finishes that it was not long before he was eagerly sought by the horsemen of the Pacific coast. During the winter months he has won nearly forty races.

Inherits Turf Fortune.

This little jockey is a living exemplification of the old saying, "Like begets like." His grandfather was Colonel McDaniel the famous head of a confederacy of turfmen which at one time was a power in the turf world. It was the colonel who trained the great horse Harry Bassett when he beat the equally famous Longfellow. It was he, too, who taught James R. Keene's thoroughbreds, the rudimentary parts of his vocation both as a jockey and conditioner of race horses.

Dave McDaniel, the superintendent of the Kansas City track, is "Puddin's" father. The youngster, who is only fifteen years old and weighs scarcely eighty pounds, was born in Versailles, Ky. Like all good sons of the Blue Grass region, his natural bent was to climb on a horse's back. This was when he was a bit of a lad. Although small, he had plenty of pluck, and his muscles were like strands of wire—thin, tough, but pliable. Practice made him master of the art of controlling crazy headed, hot blooded thoroughbreds, and after that to be a jockey came quickly.

Sloane's Opinion.

In the opinion of Ted Sloane, "Puddin'" is nothing short of a wonder. He predicts a brilliant future for him. "McDaniel," he said recently, "reminds me of Danny Maher. He crutches well up on a horse's withers and has good control of his mount's head. He seldom uses his whip. This is a good trait in youngsters, as they are inclined to use it too frequently. He is alert at the post and in a finish has often made Hildebrand, the leading jockey of last season, look like a novice."

Waterbury's New Title.

Lawrence Waterbury, the famous polo player, has won new fame by recently capturing the national championship in rackets. Waterbury has long been a player of the game and is a member of the New York Racket and Tennis club. Waterbury won the premier honor by defeating George C. Clarke, Jr., another New York player. Waterbury was outplayed in the first game, but took the second and third by fair margins. The fourth was won rather easily by Clarke, Waterbury reserving his strength for the deciding game, which he won by a score of 15 to 12.

Following is the result of the final round: Waterbury beat Clarke 11-5, 15-7, 15-9, 6-15, 15-12.

Jacob Schaefer.

Jacob Schaefer, the American billiard champion, is thought not to have been permanently injured by the recent accident that temporarily destroyed the usefulness of his left hand. Schaefer, it is stated by men who have talked with him recently, will soon be playing billiards as well as ever.

Schaefer, better known as the "wizard of the cue," is the greatest billiardist produced in America. "Wizard Jake" recently celebrated the golden anniversary of his birth, having first opened his eyes in Milwaukee in February, 1855. For thirty-five years he has been before the public as a billiardist of more than usual skill. At the age of fifteen he made the remarkable run of 1,583 points at four ball billiards, using the push shot then in vogue. More than thirty years ago he won his first championship, defeating Adam Klesser, then a prominent player, for the championship of Wisconsin, the match being at four ball billiards, 1,500 point, for $500 a side.

Schaefer's billiard career is all the more remarkable not alone as the oldest living champion in point of record holding, but more particularly as one who has suffered and overcome many and serious physical injuries, any one of which would undoubtedly have turned even a champion in any other profession to some other pursuit in life. Singularly, too, the only parallel case to Schaefer's is that of Alfredo De Oro, who at almost equal age and after several severe surgical operations has recently won the world's championship at pool in a tournament with the best players, himself making new world's records.

Schaefer as a Ball Player.

Schaefer is another of the billiardists who in early life was a player of some prominence on the baseball diamond. This was during his residence in Leavenworth, Kan., to which city his parents removed from Milwaukee shortly after his birth. Schaefer was captain and catcher of the champion Leavenworth team, and is said to have made a success of both jobs.

Schaefer made his first public appearance in a match game at Indian-olis in 1873, when he defeated Parker A. Byers for the championship of Indiana. Slosson and Schaefer also had their first meeting at Indianapolis in October, 1873, playing 600 points at three ball caroms, the score standing: Slosson, 600; high run, 38; average, 5.32. Schaefer, 381; high run, 45. Schaefer's debut in the east was in a match game with Lew Shaw at Washington in April, 1876. Shaw, then regarded as a coming champion, has since become a marvelous trick and fancy shot expert, who, next to the late Gene Carter, with his "little liver pills," has been unequaled in this field.

Schaefer's first tournament games were in the Tammany hall, New York, contests of November, 1876, when he won two of six games and had the low average of 7.00. Slosson, J. Dion and Rudolph, tied for first money. Three years later Schaefer had mastered his famous "anchor nurse" and in a match game against Slosson in Chicago made a world's record average of 333.33 in a 1,000 point game, which he ran out in three innings, his high run being 690. Slosson made 44 points in the game, and his high run was 21.

End of Straight Rail Game.

This game practically ended straight rail billiards between the professionals, and the eight inch ball line which followed shared a similar fate. Then came the fourteen inch ball line, in which Schaefer, Ives, Slosson and Vignaux met and in which Ives won the championship emblem in 1891. The first world's championship tourney at eight inch ball line was played in Madison Square Garden, New York, in 1897, when Slosson, Schaefer, Ives, Maurice Daly and George Sutton finished in the order named. Ives made the high tournament run of 140 and grand average of 14.05. Schaefer later defeated Slosson and then lost to Ives, who declined the emblem, and no more games were played for it until 1901.

HEADACHE.

A great variety of ailments are directly related to what is termed headache. The present object is to explain this one symptom in such a thorough manner as partially to include any illness with which it may be associated, leaving the discussion of the various forms and appropriate treatment to another lecture. In doing this I hope to suggest to the reader the application which will afford relief, whatever the cause may be.

To take this explanation according to its proper arrangement, the first thing which it is necessary to understand is exactly what is meant by the term pain, considered only in its physical aspect, and avoiding the metaphysical discussion as to whether the mind or body really suffers. By this is meant what state of the physical being is reflected to the mental by what is termed pain?

For example, a severe twinge is felt in the point of one of the fingers. In the consideration of this example I do not look to the mental experience, and so refer the injury to the brain; my attention is directed to the finger; there is no thought of mind, but of matter, in this case. It is, therefore, of a state of matter, and not of mind, of which one speaks when a violent pain is referred to. Inquiry thus leads to the consideration of what matter, and what is the state of it, which we call pain.

Ample experience has shown pain to be a condition of a certain kind of nervous structure in the body, i. e., as pain is at present considered, it is a condition of the nerves of sensation, or those leading to the brain—those nerves by which we have sensations of all kinds, and without the action of which we can have no feeling whatever. It is not difficult to comprehend that I shall refer only to the matter, not mind, of which pain is a condition. It is the same substance of which pleasure is another state, or it is often termed the same, but in a lesser degree. If any part of the body has in any way been deprived of the function of sensation it is deprived of pleasure as well as pain. It follows, then, that the substance above discussed is the particular one of which pain is a certain peculiar condition at the time when it is present.

So, when the head aches it indicates that some certain nerve of sensation, in direct connection with the head, is not actually contained therein, is in the unnatural state above referred to. This condition is the pain, and is referred to the head, either because it really is there, or because by relation of nerve tracts it is reflected there.

What, now, is this peculiar condition of the pain-giving nerve? It is of vital importance that this question be answered correctly. It is probably in a state of confinement as the direct or indirect result of pressure. Pressure of any kind, if it is sufficiently severe, is detrimental to the free action of any nerve, and when this is applied to a nerve in a natural condition, pain results. If the nerve already experiences a sensation of pain, it may be arrested by pressure, on the theory of counter-irritation. This is seen when an injured part is compressed firmly. The pressure is then exerted upon an artery, or arteries, and restrains the throbbing flow of the blood on the oppressed nerve, thus relieving it of that amount, at least, of the suffering.

The most violent pain is caused by a nerve itself swelling, say, in a portion of the muscles where it is imbedded. Removing the pressure relieves the pain, for we thus remove that which has impeded the free flow of the circulation and nervous action in the sensory nerve, which is the essential condition to painless physical existence.

If, for example, pain is caused by burning, it is simply the interference with normal nervous action by the counter action of the fierce and unnatural heat. So, in headache, we generally have to deal with simple pressure, which in a measure retards the vital action of the nerves affected.

To illustrate with an example: A certain person is required to labor 14 hours out of each 24 the year around, with the single exception of Sundays. The continued strain finally develops a headache, which appears in a mild degree on Friday of each succeeding week, increasing to a terrible pain on Saturday, but which the rest of Sunday seems to dissipate. This continues with unswerving regularity for weeks and weeks, varying but slightly in any of its features, driving the sufferer half wild with the terrible monotony of it, to say nothing of having to bear under the double strain of deranged nervous action and mental or physical labor, or both.

What is to be done in a case of this nature? Perhaps you suggest that the only sensible thing is to shorten the length of laboring periods, giving more time to recreation and recuperation. But then that is merely evading the issue, as there are thousands of people who are forced to undergo the same strain, as far as labor is concerned, who are not troubled with the physical affliction referred to. And, as the party who is afflicted cannot lessen his labor, the suffering must be relieved.

The case above described can be cured, and the available remedy does not force us to lessen the hours of labor. It is evident in such a case that the nervous energy required to sustain the proper equilibrium of the circulation is not sufficient to supply the extra demand made upon it, as a result of the over-exertion of the patient. Then certain parts of the interior of the head swell, causing a pressure upon the delicate nerves in that portion. If the before-mentioned nervous energy can by any means be increased, even though very slightly, it may be sufficient to meet the demand, and thus prevent the swelling, the pressure of which is the cause of the pain.

This may be secured by several methods. Before retiring treat the back to a bath of hot water and some mild soap. After this is done and the back has been quickly dried, both sides of the spine are to be given a firm yet gentle rubbing, with fine olive or sweet almond oil. This should be continued until the entire inner surface of the back is aglow with vitality. To attain this result may require 15 minutes or more. Then the back is to be subjected to a pouring of warm water for a period of about three minutes, after which it is to be again well oiled as before, to preserve the energy which has been gained. The patient is then free to seek sleep as soon as he desires.

A little help from a friend, wife, husband or mother, three-quarters of an hour in time, and a little trouble are all that is required to effect a cure in such cases. It is hardly necessary to say that all stimulants and narcotics must be absolutely forbidden. The nerves have been taxed beyond their limit, and cannot—if a cure is expected—tolerate that which will add to their burden. Tea, coffee, tobacco, alcoholic beverages and all such must be avoided.

But even when all the above have been discarded, or even in cases where they never were used, the nerves are frequently found exhausted by reason of mental or physical strain, and they demand new energy. It can be secured in the above simple manner. This is not theory, but what has been accomplished repeatedly, and what anybody so inclined can again do. It certainly does require attention and labor, but there are few things which are to be desired which have not a similar or greater price.

CLUB NOTES.

I am in receipt of a letter from Red Oak, Ia., asking for a remedy which was given in Club Notes recently, to make hair stop falling out. If the writer will send his correct name and address to me, I will answer his query. No answers are given unless full name and address are given.

Ridgeway, Mo.—Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind.—Dear Sir: Your lectures have been of inestimable value to me. I want to learn all I can about health. The Home Health Club and its work are highly interesting to me, and I am a staunch advocate of your methods. Please tell me through the Club Notes what physio-tissue where castor oil cannot be retained. I want something for the baby and a small child. For myself I use cascara and sim. Syr. equal parts, does well if you start a week ahead. What would do the work quicker? My husband has had a number of attacks, such as the following: Awake in the night or early morning with severe pain in the abdomen, accompanied by vomiting and diarrhoea. The last two symptoms soon cease, but pain continues for a day or two. The suffering is very great. What is the cause of the complaint and what would you do? Respectfully, No. 1694.

I thank you most heartily for your kind words in regard to my work. The best way to overcome constipation in infants is by the correct treatment of the mother. When you are so severely constipated that it requires large doses of cascara in order to overcome it, your baby will naturally be also very constipated. There is something radically wrong with your diet as well as that of your husband. Either you are eating wrong kinds of food, or else you do not eat properly—do not thoroughly masticate your food, etc., or you drink liquids at meal time. The organs of elimination should all be active and healthy, then there is no occasion for taking cascara or castor oil. The description which you have given of yourself and also of the babe and small child would indicate that the liver, which is the largest gland of the body, is inactive; therefore I would suggest that you use the vegetable herb remedy which I have written you of in a private letter and which has been given so often in Club Notes. This remedy will have the effect of increasing the activity of the various glands of the body and the elimination of waste matter from the system. I believe it would also put your husband in condition, so that he would have no further trouble of the kind which you described. This trouble is, from your description, somewhat like cholera morbus, but is in reality acute indigestion. He should never eat a hearty meal at night after five o'clock, but if it is necessary to eat after that hour he should eat very sparingly and should use great care to masticate all of his food quite thoroughly. He should drink nothing while food is in the mouth. He should drink an abundance of water between meals every day, as much as possible—two quarts would not be too much; you also should do the same. Sometimes the use of enemas for children is better than a physic. The old-fashioned herb remedy which I have spoken of is not a physic, but increases the activity of the gall bladder, which causes a natural evacuation of the bowels.

Readers of this paper are at liberty to write for information on subjects pertaining to health. All communications should be addressed to Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind., and contain name and address in full, and at least four cents in postage.

Zeb White's Bear Story

The Old Possum Hunter of Tennessee Tells How Master Bruin Was Humiliated and Committed Suicide.

"SOME folks look upon all b'ars alike, same as us hawks and eagles," said the old possum hunter of Tennessee as we sat smoking one evening, "but that's where they are mistaken. There are b'ars and b'ars, same as there are men and men. One b'ar may have a proper pride about him, and another may have none at all."

"Being asked if he had ever seen one with 'proper pride,' he thought for a moment and then answered:

"I shurely have, and I'll tell you about it. A feller down at Grover's

"I TOLD YOU I SMELL'D A B'AR."

Coopers was ownin' me $7 and couldn't pay. He had a lot of barbed wire to fence his patch, and he give me a right smart roll of it to square the debt. I brung it home and strung it out behind the shed for the mow and hawks to scratch on, and it jest tickled them to death. One evenin' three or four weeks later, I was out yere smokin' my pipe when the old woman comes out and whistles.

"Zeb White, have yo' got a nose on yo' or have yo' dun lost it?"

"Reckon I've got a nose," says I, "and what of it?"

"Then don't yo' smell a b'ar around?"

"Not a smell of b'ar, and I know they smell."

"Then yo've lost yo' grip and better hunt rabbits. If thar ain't a b'ar with in ten rods of this yere cabin at this very minit then I'll never ax fur another pair o' shoes. Git yo'self up and look around."

"I got up," said the old man, "and about the first thing I saw was a big b'ar out thar by the mow shed. He'd come down off the mountain and threw the laurel arter hawg meat. It was powerful bold of him, bein' as he must have knowed I was home at the time, but thar he was, and he didn't seem to mind me at all. The old woman, she seen him, too, and she whistled to me:

"I told yo' I smell'd a b'ar, and thar he is. Is the rifle loaded?"

"No."

"Then we don't git no b'ar, fur if yo' go to move he'll turn tail. Zeb, yo' ain't no mo' of a hunter than our ole cat."

"The b'ar stood thar and looked at us fur a minit," said Zeb, "and then that wire fence caught his eye. He hadn't never seen barbed wire befo', and purty soon he walks up and gives a hit with his paw. He got a jab from a barb, and it made him mad. What does he do then but give that fence a hug, and it was the funnest sight yo' ever seen. The harder he hugged the mo' he hurt hisself, of co'se, but it was a good while befo' he would let go. He growled with madnes and whimpered with pain, and me and the old woman fell to laughin' fit to kill. It was ten minits befo' that b'ar would give up. He bit and clawed and huggid, and when he finally let go he was all over blood."

"Reckon he'll make off now," says the old woman as he set up on end and growled with madnes.

"But he didn't. He felt he'd been worsted, and he wanted to git even. Thar was a heap of loose wire on the ground, and bimby he goes fur it and was all tangled up and fightin' fur his life in a minit. I never heard 'sleeb growlin' in all my life, and when he bit at that wire it made the cold chills run up our backs. I could have got the rifle and loaded it, but I didn't want to miss any of the fun. The row went on fur fifteen minits, and then the b'ar was all tuckered out and discouraged. He'd got hoit of sunthin' to beat him, and he had to own up to it hisself."

"Can't he see that he ain't fitten?" asks the old woman as he begun to back off."

"He kin," says I, "but he's sot in his ways and hates to give in. He's all clawed to pieces by them barbs, but he'll shurely try it ag'in."

"And he did. Five minits later he made a rush for that fence and begun to hug and bite and wrastle, and he was so powerful mad this time that he pushed down three or four rods of it. It wasn't no use, however. He was a licked b'ar, and the mo' he hugged and bit the mo' he knowed he was licked. Bimby he jest lay still, and whined and whimpered, and it appeared to us that thar was tears in his eyes. When he got sorter rested he sot up and looked at us, but it wasn't a squar' look, not s'ch an honest look as a b'ar orter give a man on his own land. He 'peared to be thinkin' fur a minit, and then he limps over to that chestnut tree and begins to climb up. He was mighty slow about it, but bimby he got up to that big limb, and arter a sorter farewell look around he lets go and falls kerchunk to the alrth. He lit on the ground, and was stand-in' under the tree, and bustid it all to kinders."

"And then he made off, of co'se?"

was suggested.

"No, sah, he didn't. That b'ar had an obblek when he climbed that tree. His obblek was to kill hisself becase he'd bin whopped. He jest cun down head fust on purpose to break his neck, and he dun it. Yes, sah; killed as dead as a doanball right thar befo' our eyes. He had tackled a barbed wire fence and bin licked, and he couldn't abide to live on. We counted up the harts on him and found over 200. I have allus felt a bit sorry fur that varmint. He'd bin sloshin' around in the bresh all his life, lickin' everything he cum across, and how was he to know a wire fence from a pumpkin vine? Havin' got mad about it, he was bound to fight, and havin' fust, he was bound to be whopped. A wire fence ain't a livin' thing, yo' know."

"Then you think he had feelings?"

was asked.

"Most sartainly he had, sah. Feel-in's? Why, a b'ar is chuck full of feel-in's, and I've allus felt assumed that this one didn't have a squar' deal. He might have tackled a landslide and cum out on top, but what show did he have agin 500 feet of barbed wire fence which was achin' fur a row with an elephant?"

"And you really believe he committed suicide on account of being humiliated?"

"Of co'se I do. That's whar people don't understand things. They ax that nobody but human beins have pride, whar as b'ars and s'ch have their proper show of it. I once tackled a bull and got whopped like all outdoahs, and fur a week arterwards I felt like hangin' myself. That b'ar had allus got away with everything that cum along till he struck that wire, and it not only hurt his body, but his feelin's. He couldn't go back among other b'ars and brag and swell around, and he jest made up his mind to git off the alrth. He shurely did, sah, and I'm a-thinkin' a heap mo' of him fur doin' that same. Of co'se it was suicide of co'se."

Willing to Help Him Out.

After the doctor had examined the patient and the man's wife wanted to know the nature of the illness the conscientious physician said:

"Your husband's condition is such that it will take some time to differentiate the symptoms to arrive at an accurate conception of the malady from which he is suffering. The treatment must be symptomatic. I must first make a diagnosis."

"I hope you can make it of calico," remarked the woman, "for I haven't a piece of flannel in the house."—New York Press.
